Explain in detail what work was done on the case: This is in regards to a telephone bill that was received at the Iron Horse Restaurant for the period of September 22 through October 22, 1972. The following numbers were listed on there: A telephone call was made to Bresser's Incorporated and two Chicago numbers were in question here, one was called on the 26th of September, one day before Louis FAZIO was killed, to Chicago. This number is, area code 312-944-4100. This number is listed to the Sheraton Corporation, the Sheraton Hotel and the Sheraton Restaurant on 6th & Michigan in the loop of Chicago. Another call was made on the 26th was listed to a Racine number 639-2844, this number is listed to a of Marquette Drive, Racine, Wisconsin with the date of birth, Upon receiving the teletype back it also stated that we should call back for further information. Snead CARROLL(Detective), called a Lieutenant WHITE. Restaurant and Cocktail lounge had been calling On November 8, 1972, Detective CARROLL went to Racine and talked with and the reason why that number was called on the 26th of September was a bartender at the Iron Horse Restaurant, Ray SUMINSKI was contacting in regards to an ad placed in the Milwaukee papers which stated that a cash register and tire changer were for sale. That is the reason why the number was called, as SUMINSKI was to open a gas here later in the month in Milwaukee.

Another teletype was sent to Pompano Beach, Florida. We were trying to locate any information through number 374-6232. As it turned out this number was a third number that was billed to Milwaukee and was called from Pompano Beach and billed to the Iron Horse Restaurant or the home phone of Louis FAZIO at 2605 N. Humboldt so no one else could be attached to that call. Another teletype was sent to Kenosha Wisconsin Police Dept. and that is KB 537 and the number we were looking for was 654-8618. They state to us that the telephone number 654-8618 in our city is an unpublished number and the telephone company will not give it to us and that we would have to subpeona the records or go directly to the number here in Milwaukee itself. Also another number was checked with DrePresser's a Chicago number, 889-2276 and that is an unlisted number. Other calls that were made , were to calls to Louis FAZIO'S sister, Josephine BERGLAND in San Fernando, California on 8-17-and 8-21 of 72 and a call was made to his brother, Frank Franks' Restaurant in Fort Lauderdale on 10-19-72. It should be noted at this time, that all telephone numbers have been checked out. Responses have been received on them and further investigation is still pending with Detective

Explain in detail what work was done on the case:

On Wednesday, November 8, 1972, I traveled to Racine, Wisconsin and met a Detective HOGLUND, who assisted me in locating a _____ of Marquette Drive, Racine, Wisconsin, who has the phone number of _____ listed to him. We were able to find _____ at his place of employment, which is Merle's Citgo Station, located at 600 3 mile Road, in Racine, Wisconsin. I questioned him regarding someone calling him from the Ironhorse tavern, located at 1100 W. Wells St. on September 26, 1972, subject stated that he could not remember anyone calling him from Milwaukee. I tried to refresh his memory that possibly this could have been the bartender, who at that time was Ray SUMINSKI. He says the name SUMINSKI does not ring a bell with him and I told him that SUMINSKI is now operating a filling station in Milwaukee. This seemed to revive his memory. He stated that on Sunday's paper, prior to September 26, 1972 he had advertised in the Milwaukee Journal a cash register and a tire changer for sale. He stated he remembers then getting a phone call from a person who said he was calling from a bar regarding the tire changer. I then returned to Milwaukee and went to north Farwell and east Ogden Ave. at the Standard Station, which is operated by Ray SUMINSKI. SUMINSKI is the nephew of Louis FAZIO and at the time of FAZIO's death, he was the bartender at the Ironhorse Restaurant & Cocktail Lounge located 1100 W. Wells St.. Subject did admit that he did call a Racine number and making an inquiry on the tire changer on September 26, 1972. This accounts for the phone call that was on the bill of the Ironhorse tavern and accounts for the phone number of 639-2844, at Racine, Wisconsin.

Explain in detail what work was done on the case:

On November 14, 1972, we traveled to Chicago, Illinois and at 209 N. Michigan St., Chicago, Illinois, we met with the Illinois Bureau of Investigation regarding information that they may have had regarding the Murder of Louis FAZIO. We talked to agent DRUERY, who is in charge of the organized crime section of the Illinois Bureau of Investigation and an agent BIEBEL and agent LEWANDOWSKI and agent O'SULLIVAN. We requested information that they may have had regarding the Murder of Louis FAZIO. It is there feeling that Louis FAZIO was killed by someone from the Chicago area and relation to the death of Action JACKSON, which occurred in 1961. Sometime in the early part of this year, an arrest was made of a Charles GRIMALDI for beating a man half to death with a baseball bat because this man had turned his brother on to a hard drug Heroin. Agent LEWANDOWSKI had convinced GRIMALDI to come forward to the side of the law and talk on everything that he knew. These agents all claimed that it took them nearly two weeks to debrief Mr. GRIMALDI and he was given immunity in courts for the information that he gave himself in at least two murders, gangland style and his original statement that he gave on Action JACKSON, the question arose as to why Action JACKSON was killed in 1961 and he had stated at this time, to agent LEWANDOWSKI that JACKSON was killed because Samuel DE STEFANO had received a call from Milwaukee stating that Action JACKSON was talking to the "Feds" in Milwaukee. On September 27, 1972, when Louis FAZIO was slain, agent O'SULLIVAN again contacted GRIMALDI and GRIMALDI, at that time, did not know that Louis FAZIO was dead and asked him at that time, who made the call to Sam DE STAFANO in Chicago, regarding Action JACKSON talking to the "Feds" in Milwaukee. GRIMALDI stated that Louis FAZIO was the person that called Sam DE STAFANO at that time and told him that JACKSON was informing to the "Feds". GROMALDI was contac by phone while we were in the presence of these officers. He stated he knew FAZIO and had met him on several occassions and tha he ran the restaurant on 5th St. near the traindepot in Milwaukee, which at that time would have been FAZIO's on Fifth, between Wisconsin and Michigan St., our City. GRIMALDI states that he does not know if Louis FAZIO was killed for this reason, but the State agents at Illinois, believe that this was the prime reason that Louis FAZIO was killed. DE STAFANO knows that the State of Illinois is trying to build another murder case on them as well as the Leo FORMAN case, which they are indicted on now and believes that Louis FAZIO was the only person that could actually tie him in with the Action JACKSON killing. Charles GRIMALDI stated to the Illinois Bureau of Investigation officers, that the people involved in the Action JACKSON killing was Sam DE STAFANO, Mario DE STAFANO, himself-Charles GRIMALDI, and another unknown man, who is quite elderly. Mr. GRIMALDI states that he had never seen this man before and has not seen him since and doesn't know who he is and has no way of finding out who he is, but he does know when questioned that he is not Louis FAZIO.

The Illinois Bureau of Investigation has furnished us with the surveilance reports on a Joseph - nickname BLACK JOE- AMATO and a surveilance report on the actions of one Frank Buccieri. At this time further investigation in this matter is pending.

On Thursday, December 7, 1972, we traveled to Michigan City, Indiana where the Indiana State Penetentary is located and interviewed a Robert Kenneth WICKENDEN, W/M, DOB: 9-10-33, who is incarcerated there under the charge of burglary. Subject has Indiana State Prison number 36653. Robert WICKENDEN was a little reluctant to talk to us in regards to the FAZIO Murder, stating that he had only met Louis FAZIO on one occassion, that's when he stopped there when he first got out of Waupun and he didn't become acquainted with him very well. It is obvious to us that subject is hiding or concealing information regarding one Harold L. SIMPSON and Ray RAMZINI of the holdup in East Chicago, Indiana on March 22, 1969. He stated that he had been questioned by the Chief of Police of East Chicago, Indiana regarding this and the Chief had indicated to him that there were four men involved in this robbery in which Harold SIMPSON & Ray RAMZINI were both killed. He stated that there was a third man in the house and a fourth man waiting in a getaway car. It is to be noted, that Milwaukee Phil ALDERSIO died a natural death about 3 years ago in Chicago, and it was quite obvious that in talking to Robert PEACOCK, that he was a mental case and reading newspaper accounts of different crimes, through out the Country, putting them together in his warped mind, he has come out with this fantastic stories, which the newspaper reported in Waukegan is swallowing and printing. On Wednesday, January 31st, 1973 I received a memorandum from Charles Brown, F.B.I. Agent, Milwaukee Office, regarding one Arnold Victor LEHTOLA, inmate at the U. S. Penitentiary, Levenworth, Kansas #86564-432. Mr. Lehtola was questioned by resident agents Kansas City, Kansas regarding Mr. Lehtola's association with Louis Fazio some time ago. It has come to our attention that Mr. Lehtola was asked to do an arson job on the home of Sally PAPIA, by Louis Fazi some time in 1968 or 1969. In attempting to find out whether Mr. Lehtola, who is presently incarcerated at the Federal Penitentiary had leaked this out to anyone that could have possibly gotten this information back to Milwaukee. We had request that Mr. Lehtola be interviewed by F.B.I. Agent, Kansas City, Kansas. Their memorandum had advised that Lehtola had only heard of Frank BALISTRERI, had never met him at any time. He states that he has never served prison time with him at Levenworth, Kansas or at Sandstone, Minnesota. Lehtola went on to say that he has never met, or even knows a Louis Fazio, and has never heard of Sally Papia. Mr. Lehtola states that he knew nothing or organized crime or anything of the people in Milwaukee.

At the time of this writing it is quite obvious that Mr. Lehtola is not a very receptive witness, and it seems useless for our Detectives to even question him at the United States Penitentiary, Levenworth, Kansas.

It has come to the attention of this officer that Anthony Fazio, brother of the deceased had received a phone call from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., from his brother, Frank Fazio, informing him, that a Harold Klein, who operates a salvage company in West Allis, Wisconsin, was in Florida just prior to Frank's calling of Anthony. He had related that just before Louis Fazio had been killed, Frank P. Balistrieri, W/M 5-27-18, residing at 3043 N. Shepherd Ave., Milwaukee, Wis., had approached Harold Klein regarding Harold meeting with Louis Fazio at the Iron Horse Restaurant on 11th & Wells St. Mr. Klein had related to Frank Fazio that Frank Balistrieri had warned him about these meetings with Louis Fazio and he had assured Mr. Balistrieri that he did not meet Louis Fazio for any purpose, that he had just gone into the restaurant with 2 other men on a social basis. Shortly after the burial of Louis Fazio, Mr. Klein relates to Frank Fazio, again Mr. Balistrieri approached him and stated to him, "Now who's the boss? There'll be no more meetings on 11th & Wells." Mr. Anthony Fazio, in giving this information, requests that it be kept as confidential as possible, that he is not too sure of Mr. Harold Klein being that truthful and feels that trouble could possibly arise from this if it got back in the wrong hands about these statements being made.

Gentlemen:

We have no arrest or criminal record on the above named subject, nor has Fond du Lac County.

We called Tolibia Cheese Company last Thursday, December 7 and were informed that he is a broker for the firm, presently residing or doing business somewhere in Massachusetts. We placed another call to Tolibia on Friday, December 8 and were informed by a different individual that Pellegrini was not employed by their company. The personnel seemed rather reluctant to devulge any information about the subject, so not knowing the nature of your investigation, we did not press the issue.

If we can be of further assistance, please let us know.

He stated he had this pink pear shaped Diamond in his possession about 7/14/71, that he had purchased the ring from Edwin SIEGEL for the amount of $700. stated that shortly after (about one day) he purchased the ring, Mr. SIEGEL appeared at his house about 1:30am, in the morning, telling him that he had to have the ring back, that it was stolen in a Burglary from the home of Sally PAPIA and the boyfriend of Sally PAPIA, Frank PUGLIARE was making inquiries about the ring and wanted the ring back. stated that he returned the ring to SIEGEL with the promise of SIEGEL he would repay the $700, the amount had payed for the ring.

Sometime, shortly after this occurred, stated that he appeared at the barber shop owned by Eddie SIEGEL and at this time, Eddie SIEGEL told him that the reason that the ring had to be returned was because it was a extremely hot item, his information was that it was involved in either some type of Burglary, Robbery or could have been involved in a Homicide in Illinois. when questioned, did

He believes that the ring is well worth over $700. We showed him a photograph made 7/30/71, our R of I of four rings and he identified the second ring from the left in the photograph as being the same ring that he had in his possession, that it was returned to SIEGEL. further states in his preliminary examination that there was a makers identification number on the inside of ring and possibly could be traced if we had the number for the ring and also if the ring was infact stolen or involved in any type of crime, that we could possibly trace the ring, through the number. At this writing, I was attempting to reach Assistant District Attorney Joseph [illegible] to find out if the ring were still in evidence from the recently completed SIEGEL trial, and was informed by the secretary at the District Attorneys Office that Mr. [illegible] was presently in the Grand Jury Hearing that is now going on. stated he related the same information to Andrew Shone.

To LEO WOELFEL

INSPECTOR OF DETECTIVES

Sir:

Regarding previous reports on of Gerlayna Drive, with regards to a pink diamond that was involved in the Trial of Eddie SIEGEL. I interviewed a Daniel O'BRIEN of the Frank RUSSELL Jewelers, located in the Plankinton Building. Mr. O' BRIEN stated that he had been an expert witness as to the value of this diamond ring at the Trial of Eddie SIEGEL and had examined the ring very close. Estimated its value up to $5,000.00. He states that it was a pink diamond, which are quite rare but this particular stone was not of the best quality. He measured it at about 2¼ carats and stated that the ring itself and the stone had no identifying marks and states that there were no numbers inside of the ring and does not believe that the ring could be identified by any one in this Country except the actual owner.

Mr. O'BRIEN states that numbers that appear usually on jewelry are the numbers of manufactures and that a number that the manufacturer uses, it could be thousand of rings, settings of this type with the same number in it and even if the number did appear, which it did not in this ring. You could not trace the owner of the ring by this number.

Explain in detail what work was done on the case:

It has come to the attention of this officer that Anthony Fazio, brother of the deceased had received a phone call from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., from his brother, Frank Fazio, informing him, that a Harold Klein, who operates a salvage company in West Allis, Wisconsin, was in Florida just prior to Frank's calling of Anthony. He had related that just before Louis Fazio had been killed, Frank P. Balistrieri, W/M 5-27-18, residing at 3043 N. Shepherd Ave., Milwaukee, Wis., had approached Harold Klein regarding Harold meeting with Louis Fazio at the Iron Horse Restaurant on 11th & Wells St. Mr. Klein had related to Frank Fazio that Frank Balistrieri had warned him about these meetings with Louis Fazio and he had assured Mr. Balistrieri that he did not meet Louis Fazio for any purpose, that he had just gone into the restaurant with 2 other men on a social basis. Shortly after the burial of Louis Fazio, Mr. Klein relates to Frank Fazio, again Mr. Balistrieri approached him and stated to him, "Now who's the boss? There'll be no more meetings on 11th & Wells." Mr. Anthony Fazio, in giving this information, requests that it be kept as confidential as possible, that he is not too sure of Mr. Harold Klein being that truthful and feels that trouble could possibly arise from this if it got back in the wrong hands about these statements being made.

Explain in detail what work was done on the case:

On Wednesday, January 31st, 1973 I received a memorandum from Charles Brown, F.B.I. Agent, Milwaukee Office, regarding one Arnold Victor LEHTOLA, inmate at the U. S. Penitentiary, Levenworth, Kansas #86564-432. Mr. Lehtola was questioned by resident agents Kansas City, Kansas regarding Mr. Lehtola's association with Louis Fazio some time ago. It has come to our attention that Mr. Lehtola was asked to do an arson job on the home of Sally PAPIA, by Louis Fazio some time in 1968 or 1969. In attempting to find out whether Mr. Lehtola, who is presently incarcerated at the Federal Penitentiary had leaked this out to anyone that could have possibly gotten this information back to Milwaukee. We had request that Mr. Lehtola be interviewed by F.B.I. Agent, Kansas City, Kansas. Their memorandum had advised that Lehtola had only heard of Frank BALISTRERI, had never met him at any time. He states that he has never served prison time with him at Levenworth, Kansas or at Sandstone, Minnesota. Lehtola went on to say that he has never met, or even knows a Louis Fazio, and has never heard of Sally Papia. Mr. Lehtola states that he knew nothing of organized crime or anything of the people in Milwaukee.

At the time of this writing it is quite obvious that Mr. Lehtola is not a very receptive witness, and it seems useless for our Detectives to even question him at the United States Penitentiary, Levenworth, Kansas.

It is to be noted, that Milwaukee Phil ALDERSIO died a natural death about 3 years ago in Chicago, and it was quite obvious that in talking to Robert PEACOCK, that he was a mental case and reading newspaper accounts of different crimes, through out the Country, putting them together in his warped mind, he has come out with this fantastic stories, which the newspaper reporter in Waukegan is swallowing and printing. Wells Street, to the Riverside Restaurant and Cocktail Lounge at Riverside, Illinois, from the pay phone at the Iron Horse. The day that this phone dall was made, the brother of the deceased states that there was a man there by the name of Al Pelligrini, who was connected with the Cheese Company from Fond du Lac, Wisconsin, and he was wondering possibly that maybe he had made this phone call.

FBI Agent Chuck Brown was asked to give assistance in locating this man from the cheese company and he contacted his FBI office in the Eastern United States and found that the person that was in the Iron Horse that date was an Armond Pelligrini who is the president of Allpack Corporation located at Lexington, Mass. He is also affiliated with Tolibia Cheese Company located in Fond du Lac, Wisconsin and handles their products. Subject was interviewed by FBI agents stated that he had met Fazio's brother on two seperate occasions. He may have been in the restaurant on the date in question but denies knowing anybody from the Riverside Restaurant in Riverside, Illinois. He denied knowing anything about this offense. He is not wanted at this time and seems to be a reputable citizen.

SENTINEL 2-28-73

20 Crime Chiefs Claimed in State

By RICK JANKA
Sentinel Staff Writer

Madison, Wis. — There are 20 to 25 leaders of organized crime in Wisconsin, most of whom work out of reputable Milwaukee area businesses, a special agent for the State Justice Department said here Tuesday.

Herbert L. Krusche said that "most members of our Wisconsin group either operate or are associated with some type of seemingly legitimate business or are associated in some way with local labor unions and/or political groups."

Krusche, who is head of the Organized Crime Section of the State Justice Department, spoke to a crowd of about 200 persons during a criminal justice seminar in the Wisconsin Center.

After the speech, Krusche was asked by a reporter to comment on the slaying of Milwaukee restaurateur Louis Fazio and its connection with organized crime.

"We have what we believe

Turn to Page 7, Col. 5

Crime

to be reliable intelligence information that strongly indicates that the Fazio murder was organized crime related," Krusche said.

He refused to comment further on the Fazio death.

Fazio, who had spent more than a dozen years in prison for murder and a parole violation, was shot three times in the parking lot behind his apartment building at 2805 N. Humboldt Ave., Milwaukee, on Sept. 27.

In his speech, Krusche said that organized crime in Milwaukee and southern Wisconsin is known to operate out of businesses such as real estate firms, hotels, construction firms, home improvement firms, salvage firms, taverns and nightclubs.

The violations committed by organized crime in Wisconsin are income and sales tax fraud, planned bankruptcy, fraud on the consumer, extortion and murder, he said.

Krusche emphasized that "there is no area in the state of Wisconsin where there is wholesale corruption within our criminal justice system.

"There are, of course, always those one or two persons within each segment of the system who are willing to sell their souls for personal gain."

Those few in each step of the justice system from police through corrections officers, however, can wreck the hard work of dedicated co-workers, he said.

Ralph F. Salerno, who was described Tuesday as the nation's leading authority on organized crime, told the seminar that Wisconsin is "too paranoid" about legalized bingo.

"You're getting traumatic in Wisconsin, worrying if you can have legalized bingo without organized crime taking over the State Capitol," Salerno said.

"My God, it's already here. Bingo is not going to increase it.

Salerno, a former New York policeman who has served on the President's Crime Commission, noted that legalized gambling, such as bingo and lotteries is becoming common place in many states.

"The legal gambling, such as bingo, is one way to take the customers away from organized crime. It is one way to defeat it," he said.

Krusche, however, disagreed with Salerno on the dangers of legalized gambling and noted that Salerno was a paid consultant for off-track betting in New York.

Krusche said he believes that Wisconsin should take a wait and see attitude on whether organized crime can infiltrate legalized gambling operations, which some states have recently adopted.

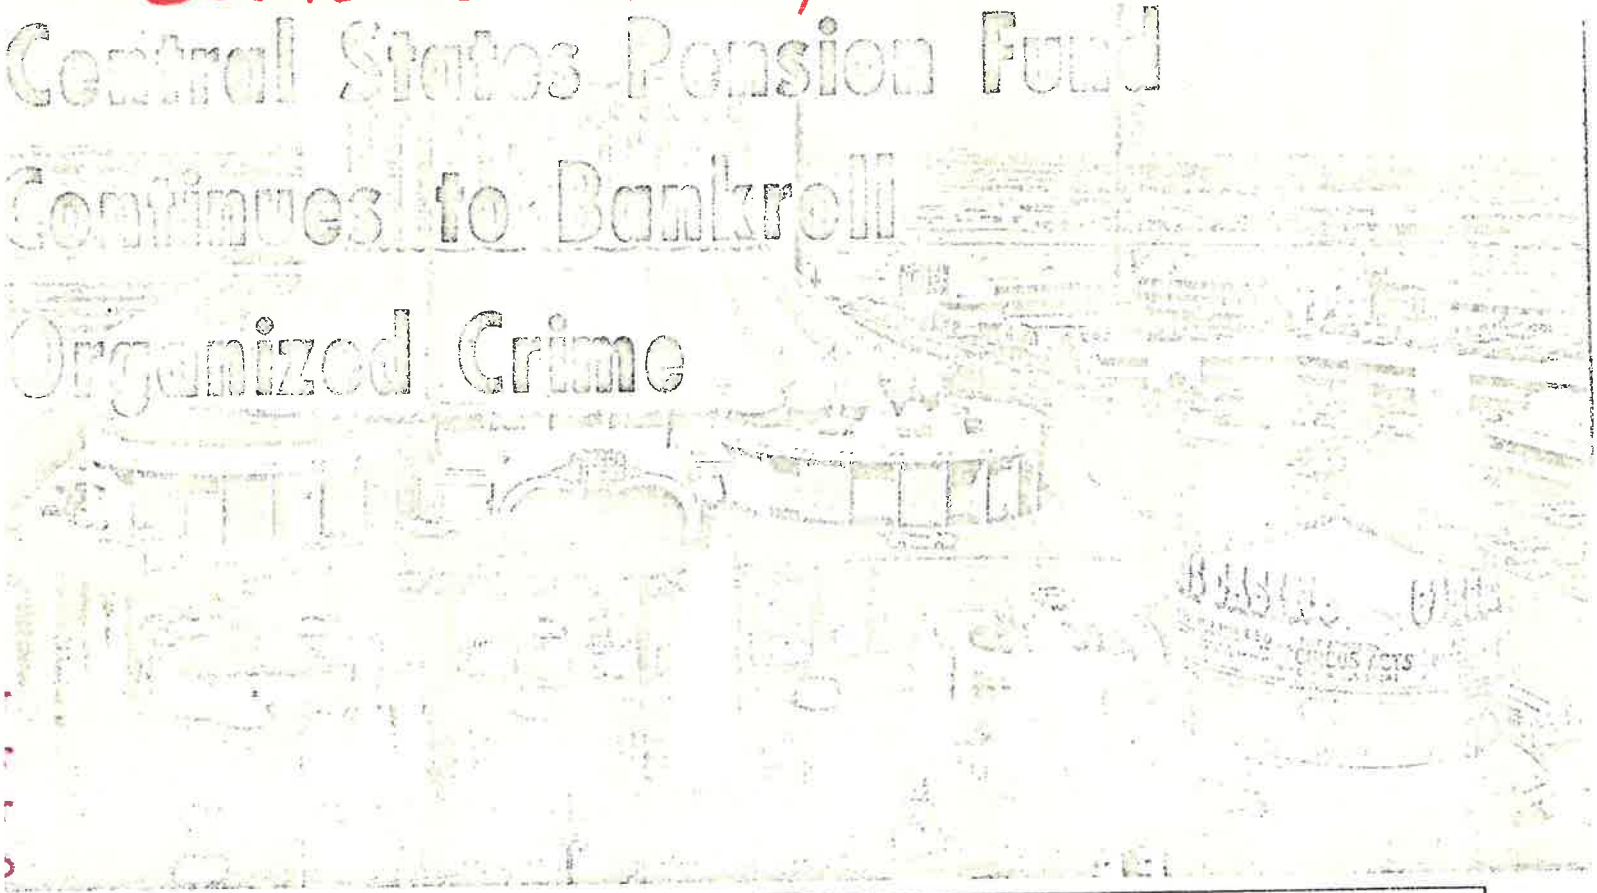
OVERDRIVE JANUARY 1973

Central States Pension Fund Continues to Bankroll Organized Crime



Circus Circus Hotel and Casino, with over $20 million in Fund money invested in it, has become a meeting place for Chicago's organized crime element.

Chicago Syndicate Members Receive Truckers' Money Through Efforts of Allen Dorfman

Federal Investigations in Four States Focus on Possible Kickbacks and Bankruptcy Fraud.

"Mario (De Stefano) pulled a gun. I pulled my gun. We fired. Tony (Spilotro) was in there, too, and he fired. We fired together . . . Tony stabbed him a few times. Mario stabbed him a few times . . . Leo (Foreman) was moaning 'Oh, my God, please, oh, my God . . . then Mario stabbed him a few times and Tony kicked him and I kicked him . . . Leo kept moaning and I asked Mario, 'Why can't we put a bullet behind his ear and get him out of his misery?' . . . Sam (De Stefano) took the gun and turned him around and shot him in the buttocks . . . Mario stabbed him a few more times, and Leo kind of stopped moving. . ."

These words may seem more appropriate in a blood-drenched novel spun from sadistic imagination, but they are actually excerpts from testimony given very recently before a secret grand jury in Chicago. That evidence led to three indictments for murder. One of those accused was a friend of Allen Dorfman, and had been in contact with him shortly before that.

Tracing the link between this man and Dorfman eventually led OVERDRIVE into a tangle of personal and business relationships between them and various other individuals, and the Central States, Southeast and Southwest Areas Pension Fund. When completed, this investigation spanned several months, covered thousands of miles, focusing finally on Fund activity in four states. Among the discoveries:

 An organized crime figure from Chicago operating out of a Las Vegas casino financed by the Pension Fund. This person was recently arrested and charged with taking part in a torture/murder.*

 A lawyer for the Pension Fund appearing as a corporate officer in a business which has obtained Fund money. The key officer in this company is connected with a fund-financed Las Vegas casino which is under federal investigation and with Allen Dorfman.*

 Through the efforts of Allen Dorfman, Chicago syndicate members took over a Fund loan in New Mexico in what appears to be a bankruptcy fraud scheme. One of the corporate officers figures in a syndicate-ordered bomb-killing of a mob informer.*

 Mob figures involved in the Nevada and New Mexico transactions appear in connection with Allen Dorfman in an apparent fraud attempt in Michigan. One of them is implicated in a gangland execution.*

 A federal investigation into the Fund loans in these four states has been quietly launched, and some sources say the probe may extend into more areas.*

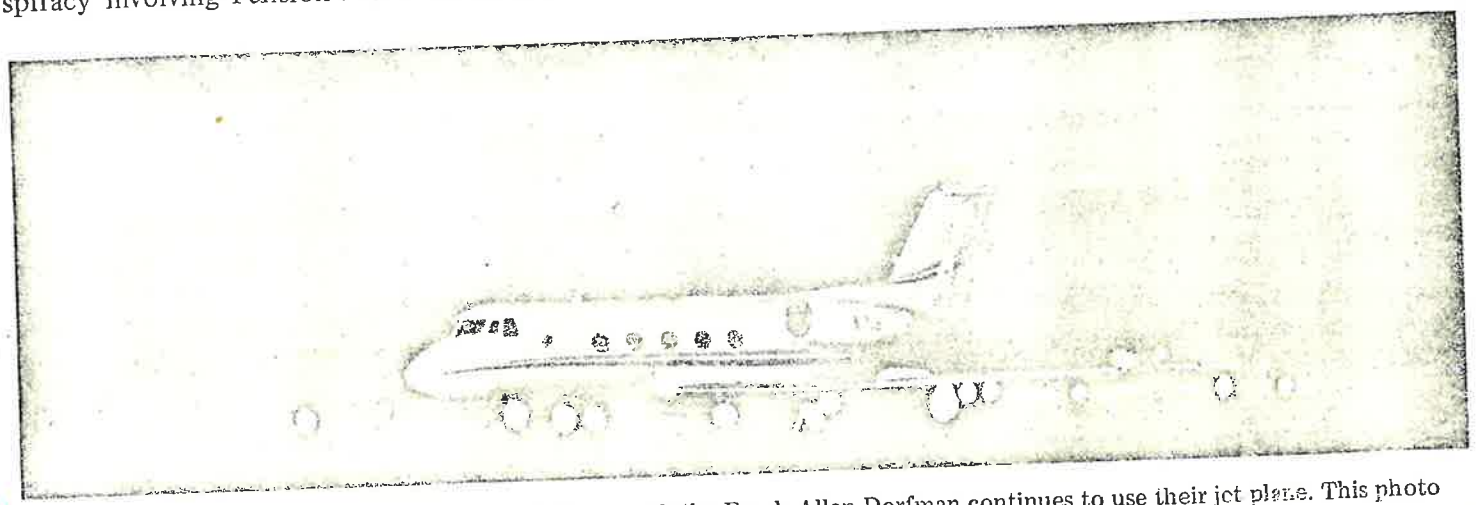
* * * * *

One of the most important elements involved in gathering information about the transactions carried on by the Central States Pension Fund is monitoring the activities of 49-year-old Allen M. Dorfman. Although convicted on six counts of fraud and conspiracy involving Pension Fund Loans, Dorfman still maintains control over approval of loans. (Dorfman's conviction was affirmed by the U.S. Court of Appeals on November 29. One Justice Department official commented that the Court's opinion was so strong that "I'm confident the (U.S.) Supreme Court will never grant him a hearing"). The current and future activities of the Fund can be pieced together with a surprising amount of accuracy by knowing the people Dorfman deals with. Such an obvious conclusion has not been lost on Dorfman, of course, and he has made some effort to conceal his movements.

Just recently, for example, Dorfman made a concerted effort to thwart the surveillance which continually follows him. The captain of the Pension Fund's $3 million 12-seat Grumman Gulfstream Jet has been giving written instructions to airport personnel in each city the Fund plane visits, claiming that they are having "security problems," and that no information on their arrival or departure is to be given out.

Some may recall, however, that OVERDRIVE reported six months ago that Dorfman had been replaced as "special consultant" because of his convictions. In fact, OVERDRIVE has obtained copies of the Pension Fund meeting at which Dorfman "resigned," and was replaced by Alvin Baron, a 47-year-old Illinois lawyer who has been with the Fund for many years, but always in the background. This official action by the Fund, though, was merely window-dressing: Allen Dorfman continues to be the man with significant power over approval of Fund loans, traveling in the Fund's jet, and having his expenses paid by them.

In July, Dorfman (on the Fund's jet) flew to La Costa Country Club (financed by over $50 million in Pension Fund money) near San Diego for a series of high-level meetings concerning new Fund loans, as well as delinquent ones which were to be refinanced.



Although convicted of fraud and technically no longer with the Fund, Allen Dorfman continues to use their jet plane. This photo was taken in November at McCarran Field in Las Vegas. A nearby armed guard kept close watch on it during its stay.

When Dorfman left La Costa, he flew via commercial airline to Los Angeles, then on to Las Vegas where he met with an individual who goes by the name of Anthony Stewart.

I- NEVADA

In mid-November, Dorfman flew into Las Vegas on the Fund's jet, along with Frank Fitzsimmons, president of the Teamsters Union, and Irvin Kahn, the San Diego wheeler-dealer who, together with Morris Shenker, has borrowed hundreds of millions from the Fund. While in Las Vegas, Dorfman was seen with Jay Sarno of Circus Circus Hotel and Casino, and Lou Rosanova, an associate of organized crime figures and who is connected with a Fund-financed country club in Georgia. Rosanova is currently on trial for mail fraud, along with two Chicago hoodlums.

When in Las Vegas, Dorfman usually stays at the Riviera Hotel (he and Alvin Baron have charge accounts there). This time, though, Dorfman, Kahn and Fitzsimmons stayed at the Dunes Hotel & Country Club in a suite used by an executive of Continental Connector Corporation, the company that owns the Dunes.

Since Dorfman occupies a unique position insofar as power and wealth are concerned, it would be expected that his business and social dealings would be conducted with those of equal stature. In the past, he has done just that, associating with various multi-millionaires in this country, Switzerland and the Bahamas. It was with some curiosity, then, that OVERDRIVE noted his contacts with Stewart, the 35-year old operator of a small gift shop at Circus Circus Hotel and Casino.

Jay Sarno and the Fund

Circus Circus, as mentioned in August, is financed entirely by the Central States Pension Fund. In February, 1971, the Fund paid $2,600,000 for the land on which the complex was built, then leased it to the corporation which operates the hotel/casino. In the same month, the Fund made a $15,500,000 loan to them. Thirteen months later, another loan was made—this one for $2,600,000. The three interconnected corporate entities which operate the casino/hotel are Circus Circus, Inc., Circus Circus, a partnership, and Hectus Pectus, Inc. The person who controls all three—Jay Sarno—holds 73% of the stock issued by Circus Circus, Inc. Sarno is a long-time borrower from the Fund, beginning in 1957 when he received loans of several million dollars to build a string of motels. Prior to Circus Circus, his most recent Fund-financed venture was Caesar's Palace, another Las Vegas casino which he has since sold. The past activities of the operation of Caesar's Palace, though, are under close scrutiny by the Justice Department.

Sarno also owns another casino in Las Vegas called the Big Wheel, although it is small in comparison to the well-known Strip casinos. Another company in which he has an interest is Carofree Corporation which operates a coin-operated shooting gallery at Circus Circus. Sarno appears as a vice-president of the company, according to the latest records available. One source has said Sarno owns stock in the company, but the amount is unknown.

It would appear, then, that any dealings between the Fund and Circus Circus would be through Allen Dorfman and Jay Sarno. But Dorfman, OVERDRIVE has observed, has been in contact with Anthony Stewart. The question immediately raised, of course, is why a man of Dorfman's importance and influence would be dealing with a gift shop operator. The answer to that intriguing question appeared simple to obtain at first, but the first dead-end showed it would be no easy task. After months of patient digging, though, OVERDRIVE has what appears to be the answer: Allen Dorfman, in active participation with organized crime figures from Chicago, has arranged Pension Fund loans and set up various schemes in at least four states. After the tortuous process of sorting out an incredibly complex maze of corporate maneuverings, this is the picture which has emerged:

The Elusive Anthony Stewart

The first question to answer was: who is Anthony Stewart? A check of state, county and city records disclosed no trace of an Anthony Stewart or a company such as Stewart's Gift Shop. Public utility records were also negative. Phone company records—listed and unlisted—did not reveal such a person.

The gift shop at Circus Circus which Stewart was supposed to run had opened in May of this year, and went under that name. Personnel at the casino could offer no further information than that. The fact that Anthony Stewart must exist was strengthened by a document filed in the Clark County Recorder's Office with a date of August 18. It was an Assignment of Lease between Circus Circus and the Pension Fund. One page contained a list of all the concessions at the casino, and one of them read: "gift shop—Mr. Anthony Stewart." Nevertheless, all sources checked showed that he did not exist.

LEASE

This Lease, dated the ... day of ... 1972, is made and entered, by and between CIRCUS-CIRCUS, INC., hereinafter called "Landlord" and ANTHONY STEWART, INC., a Nevada corporation, doing business as ANTHONY STEWART GIFT SHOP, herein-

CIRCUS-CIRCUS, INC.
Landlord

By ...

ANTHONY STEWART, INC.
Tenant

By ... pres.

The first break in this frustrating task came when a copy of the lease agreement between Circus Circus and the gift shop was obtained. That document showed the gift shop being run by Anthony Stewart, Inc. Still, public records showed that no such corporation had ever been formed. The key was in the signing of the lease on behalf of the gift shop; it was signed by "Anthony Stuart, pres."

With "Stuart" as a new starting point, public records were checked again. State files turned up a corporation formed in April, 1972 called Anthony Stuart, Ltd. The three persons who formed the corporation turned out to be girls who work for the Las Vegas law firm of Goodman & Snyder. The only other name in the Articles of Incorporation was that of the sole corporate director, Anthony Spilotro.

Files in the Clark County Clerk's Office showed that Anthony Stuart, Ltd. was doing business at Circus Circus under the fictitious name of Anthony Stuart Gift Shop. This document was signed by Anthony Spilotro, president of the corporation.

A business license application to operate the gift shop under the same name was filed with the Clark County Sheriff's Office in June. It was signed by Anthony Spilotro, president of Anthony Stuart, Ltd.

The unraveling of Spilotro's identity came when he appeared, together with four others, as a 20% owner of a $135,000 piece of property in Las Vegas. The owners, in addition to Spilotro, were Pat Ricciardi, Joseph Lombardo, Louis Nesci and Realty Mart, Inc. After positive identification of three of them was made, what emerged was a portrait of organized crime figures from Chicago operating in Nevada.

Spilotro – "Gangland Terrorist"

Anthony Spilotro–Various law enforcement investigators have these comments about Spilotro: "the biggest juice man in the country; ("juice man" is a loan shark operator. Mob loans have an interest rate of about 20% per week, with your life as security, and broken bones as late charges); a "gangland terrorist;" "rising star in the crime syndicate;" and a "triggerman for the late Felix (Milwaukee Phil) Alderisio." Prior to moving to Las Vegas from Chicago, Spilotro, at the age of 35, had compiled a record of 22 arrests (two of them in Europe). Most of these involved gambling, robbery and burglary. Some sources say that Spilotro is a prime suspect in several mob killings, although he was never arrested for them.

In Chicago, Spilotro was considered to be the right-hand man of Alderisio, one of the five "directors" of organized crime in that area. When Alderisio went to prison (he died there earlier this year), Spilotro was given the trusted position of looking out for his boss' interests by collecting the take from various gambling dens.

Ricciardi – Chicago Mobster

Pat (Patsy) Ricciardi–For years, Ricciardi has been associated in business and socially with Alderisio. He is also president of Bureau Currency Exchange in Chicago, a known hangout for mobsters. Ricciardi is also a cousin of Alderisio. After Alderisio's death, Ricciardi was also assigned to look after the gangster's interests. When Alderisio's safety deposit box was opened, Ricciardi was one of the few people present to go through the contents. Although he is a part owner of this Las Vegas property, he spends most of his time in Chicago.

Lombardo – Criminal Record Since 1954

Joseph (The Clown) Lombardo—His criminal record dates back to 1954, and includes charges such as burglary and kidnapping. Like Spilotro and Ricciardi, Lombardo has been identified as working for the Alderisio organization, and is considered a friend and associate of both men. Chicago is his prime center activity, but he has been observed making trips out of state. One of Lombardo's other interests is International Fiber Glass Corporation in Elk Grove, a Chicago suburb. Both Lombardo and Alderisio are said to own a piece of the company. When interviewed recently at his plant, Lombardo, who has the title of foreman, didn't know what products the company made.

Realty Mart, Inc.—This Nevada corporation was formed in May, 1971. The persons controlling this company are Paul and Dianne Terracina. Dianne is the only officer who is a licensed real estate agent, and the corporation is currently delinquent as to the annual filing of corporate officers. Except for the fact that the Terracinas know the other four individuals, no further information is available concerning them except that Dianne has gone under the last names of Cavole, Dahl, Kishner and Salerno. When questioned about this real estate transaction, Dianne Terracina refused to discuss it.

STATE OF NEVADA, COUNTY OF Clark

On JUNE 22, 1972

No information has been discovered with regard to the fifth person, Louis Nesci, although it has been learned that he was involved in the settlement of the estate of a Beulah Bradley Gaul in 1970.

What ties all five property owners together more than what would first appear is the fact that the property involved happens to be located at 1093 East Sahara in Las Vegas. This is the address of Realty Mart, Inc.

Another person acquiring Nevada property at approximately the same time was Anthony's brother, Vincent Spilotro. Recorded documents show that Vincent purchased property in Henderson, Nevada, a small town 20 miles from Las Vegas. No tie-in with his brother and the others mentioned has been established yet, however.

Strike Force Probe into Circus Circus

While the identity of Spilotro and other Chicago hoodlums was being established, hard information about a federal investigation began to surface. It was learned that the Justice Department's Organized Crime Strike Force in Los Angeles was probing into the operations of Circus Circus. What has been discovered is that the Strike Force is conducting a massive investigation into Pension Fund loans in Nevada, specifically those made to Circus Circus. Among the subjects being explored are: kickbacks being made to obtain the loans, skimming (the concealment of gambling receipts to avoid payment of taxes, this being money that finds its way into anonymous bank accounts in Switzerland and the Bahamas); hidden ownership of the casino by organized crime figures from Chicago; and other illegal activities being conducted in Nevada by these same people, principally loan-sharking. Prime figures under investigation include Allen Dorfman, Jay Sarno, Alvin Baron, Anthony Spilotro, Pat Ricciardi, Joseph Lombardo, Perry Franks and Frank Rosenthal, and other members of Alderisio's crime syndicate operation in Chicago. Judging from the number of people being questioned before the secret grand jury hearing testimony, and the activity of Justice Department officials, indictments may be forthcoming early this year.

While the possibility of criminal action being taken against those involved with Circus Circus in the future exists, the casino has already found itself faced with other problems. This past June 27, the Internal Revenue Service filed a lien against Circus Circus, claiming that $1,191,463 in taxes were past due. Three days later, the taxes were paid, but only after Sarno arranged for loans from two Las Vegas banks. This money was loaned only when an agreement was made between Sarno and Dorfman that the Pension Fund would pay off the bank loans immediately, and Circus Circus would sign a note to repay the $1 million to the Fund. That agreement was signed on August 18, making the total Pension Fund investment in Circus Circus a sizeable $21,700,000.

Almost $1 Million in Liens

Since this past July, almost $1 million in liens have been filed against Circus Circus by various contractors who built the 416-room hotel section of the complex. Although the filing of such liens is a routine matter in order to protect one's interest, at least one lawyer who filed a lien has expressed genuine concern about ever obtaining money for his client. In addition, only $27,000 of the amount claimed by the contractors has been paid. An interesting sidelight to this is that Hank Greenspun, publisher of the Las Vegas Sun (and who is a past borrower from the Fund, as well as a friend of Jimmy Hoffa and Jay Sarno) issued an order that no news items on liens against Circus Circus were to be published. Greenspun issued this directive the same day a $116,000 lien was filed against the casino. One Sun staff member, though, claimed that Greenspun's order referred to all liens against any Las Vegas business.

Another item involving the Sun which is worth mentioning is that the newspaper will have printed a 4-part series on Pension Fund loans in Nevada between Christmas and New Year's just past. It has been learned that the Sun articles will only concern themselves with whether a loan is considered financially sound; no mention will be made of any of the borrowers' criminal backgrounds of activities. According to one Sun staff member, the Fund will provide the loan information.

$500,000 Lawsuit

In September, a $500,000 civil suit was filed in federal court in Las Vegas by Howard Arndt, a minority stockholder in Circus Circus. The defendants are Jay Sarno and Stanley Mallin, the principal corporate officers. Arndt's suit charges that the two men have mismanaged the business and misappropriated its funds. Specifically, Arndt claims that Jay Sarno has used money from Circus Circus for his personal benefit.

The validity of those charges will have to be determined in court, of course, but other information obtained by OVERDRIVE seems to have a bearing on those accusations.

Sarno's Unpaid Gambling Debts

Sworn affidavits carrying a date earlier last year state that in the years 1969, 1970 and 1971, Jay Sarno lost $2,653,900, just in Las Vegas gambling casinos. It would seem that this amount would be higher, inasmuch as Sarno is known to be a very heavy gambler, betting on any kind of sporting event, in addition to casino gaming operations.

More intriguing than the losses themselves, however, are the claims made in July, 1972, that Sarno still owed $2,032,400 of this total. Documents show that Sarno has these outstanding markers (debts) at the following Las Vegas casinos:

1969 – Sands – $140,000; Caesar's Palace – $278,500

1970 – Caesar's Palace – $962,000; Sands – $215,000; Riviera – $191,000; Horseshoe – $100,000

1971 – Caesar's Palace – $96,900; Riviera – $46,000; Sands – $3,000

When questioned about these unpaid gambling debts, Sarno said: "I've paid all my gambling debts." Further, he claimed, "I quit gambling some time ago. And when I say I quit, I quit." Sarno would not say exactly when he quit, but the distinct impression was given that it was over a year ago. This is in contradiction to a statement made in December, 1971, that Sarno and a Harry Bloomfield lost $30,000 "in a very short time" while gambling. In addition, Sarno has been seen gambling in Las Vegas, the most recent time toward the end of 1972 in the casino of the Sands Hotel.

The accuracy of the unpaid debt claims could be verified by the casinos involved, but none of them will comment on the subject. Sarno, when he learned that OVERDRIVE had obtained this information, threatened civil and criminal action if it were printed.

Spilotro Arrested for Murder on August 31

Anthony Spilotro ran into his own set of problems, that day. He was arrested in Las Vegas for murder on the basis of a warrant sworn out in Chicago on August 30. Spilotro, along with Chicagoans Sam and Mario De Stefano (both of whom work for the Alderisio organization) were charged with the torture and murder of Leo Foreman, a syndicate loan collector, on November 14, 1963. Grand jury minutes obtained by OVERDRIVE show that an eyewitness to the killing claims that all three men beat, stabbed and shot Foreman because they believed he was stealing syndicate money. According to several sources, these same men were suspect at the time of the killing, but the witness who now is testifying feared for his life at the time, and refused to cooperate.

After his arrest, Spilotro appeared before Las Vegas Justice of the Peace Robert Reid, who immediately released him on a mere $10,000 bail. Neither the District Attorney's Office nor the Sheriff's Department (who arrested him) had been consulted, and when they learned of the release, they asked a District Court judge to revoke it. A hearing followed, but Judge Howard Babcock refused to set any bail. Appearing at the proceeding to testify on Spilotro's behalf was a friend, Frank (Lefty) Rosenthal, a Chicago gambling specialist now living in Las Vegas and running the baccarat room at the Desert Inn.

Spilotro was returned to the Clark County jail, and a week later returned to Chicago to be arraigned. Chicago authorities, who had demanded that Nevada officials not release Spilotro on bail, saw the accused murderer set free on bail of $50,000. After being released, Spilotro found time to attend the wake for Paul (The Waiter) Ricca, one of the top organized leaders in Chicago.

An item missing from the accounts of Spilotro's arrest at his gift shop was that two persons were present with him at the time: Jim (Turk) Torello and Jimmy (Bomber) Catura. Both are mobsters from Chicago who work for Fiore (Fifi) Buccieri, a notorious organized crime figure in that city. Torello and Catura have been suspects in gangland slayings; particularly

The Identity of "Stewart"

With such a notorious background, it would appear that Sarno and Mallin would know, or at least have some idea about, Spilotro. Yet both men emphatically deny that they knew about him or even that his name was Spilotro. They claim that they always knew him as Anthony Stewart. According to Sarno, Mallin first met Spilotro at a PTA meeting. Shortly after that, he appeared at Circus Circus to talk about a lease for a gift shop. Several items about the dealings between Circus Circus and Spilotro, however, indicate that Sarno and Mallin either knew Spilotro or at least about him, or else they are incredibly inept businessmen. Based upon past experience, the latter conclusion could never be reached.

The first point of interest is that Circus Circus is the only casino in Las Vegas which allows an outside gift shop to compete with its own. Even Sarno has admitted this. Why Sarno would allow someone else to make money on the business he himself could easily handle is a mystery. In its first six months of operation, Spilotro's gift shop has grossed $70,000.

Both Sarno and Mallin were questioned closely about how they verified that "Stewart" was a credit risk worth taking a chance on, and both admitted that they merely called his attorney, who assured them that he was "financially responsible." That astute businessmen such as Sarno and Mallin could be so apparently lax in such a transaction is impossible to believe, based upon their past business dealings. Several times in a conversation, Mallin stated that he checked with the "local" attorney for "Stewart," which suggests that "local" meant he knew Spilotro was not from Las Vegas.

Nevada Gaming Control Board Takes Action

On October 23, Spilotro flew back to Las Vegas because the conditions of his bail allow him to travel between the two cities. Two days after he arrived, the Nevada Gaming Control Board filed an Order To Show Cause why a complaint shouldn't be issued against Circus Circus, stating that Spilotro's association with the casino brings discredit to the people of Nevada and the state's gaming industry. The Control Board had learned of Spilotro's presence and background prior to this action, and had been attempting to get rid of him for some time. Sarno had no comment on the Board's charges, although at the time of Spilotro's arrest for murder, he said: "Why, that baby-faced kid . . . he ran such a nice shop."

Since Spilotro's murder arrest, the Business License office of the Clark Country Sheriff ruled that if the gift shop operation were to continue, Spilotro would have to be removed from the corporation. This was done in September, and the only corporate officer shown for Anthony Stuart, Ltd. is Anthony's wife, Nancy. While Anthony doesn't appear in the corporation technically, one official commented that if his wife were to remain, it would still be the same thing as if he were there.

Sarno a "Front Man?"

Much speculation has been circulated about the exact nature of the relationship between Sarno and Spilotro. Some suggestions have been advanced that Sarno is merely a "front man" for the real owners of Circus Circus, Chicago's organized crime syndicate. One federal organized crime investigator said "there is that possibility . . . it (Circus Circus) is certainly an interesting place." Another law enforcement official was more direct: "We know it, but we can't prove it . . . not this week, anyway." An observer familiar with the workings of Chicago's criminal element commented: "Sarno, he's just a front man . . . a helluva promoter. That's why he was put there." But to date, these are stories and rumors lacking conclusive proof.

That Sarno is a promoter with a flair for flamboyance is well-known. His most familiar ventures, besides Circus Circus, include the gaudy Caesar's Palace casino in Las Vegas (also built with Pension Fund money) and the string of airport Cabana Inns, also financed by the Fund and one of whose investors for a time was singer Doris Day. Sarno's treatment of people can be either perfectly suave or highly abusive and threatening, all pursued with equal impressiveness. Some of his statements go to extremes. "Caesar's Palace," he once told OVERDRIVE, "is the most successful hotel in the history of the world."

Although hard facts are not available at this time showing a definite link between the Chicago syndicate and Circus Circus, certain facts are available which do indicate a very interesting thread of persons appearing in the same companies, and having business and social relationships with Dorfman and others connected with organized crime.

Diversified Leisure Corporation is a one-and-a-half year old Nevada company which operates two concessions at Circus Circus—the pin ball machine room and the bumper car rides. The president is shown as Perry Franks, with an address of 838-D Merchandise Mart in Chicago. Franks, it has been learned, is a long-time friend and associate of Sarno. Other information shows that Franks, Sarno and Dorfman have been observed together in Las Vegas a number of times. In Chicago, where Franks maintains his office, he and Dorfman have been in contact frequently for business deals. The extent of their closeness can be illustrated by an incident which has been quietly hushed up: On July 28, 1967, Perry Franks stopped by Dorfman's house in Riverwood, Illinois to pick him up. As they started out of the driveway, two masked men came out of the bushes and cranked several shotgun rounds into the car. No one was injured as the shattered car sped away, and that was the end of it. The police refused to discuss the case because it is still considered open, but it has been learned that no arrests were ever made in connection with it.

Sarno's friendship with Dorfman appears particularly strong in light of the fact that he was present in the courtroom virtually every day during Dorfman's kickback trial. According to several sources, Sarno was referred to as the "go-for," as he would be the one to go for coffee for those connected with Dorfman's defense.

Sarno and Franks

Sarno has said that he is not an officer of Diversified, nor does he have any financial interest in the company. The sole stockholder, said Sarno, is Perry Franks. That is interesting in the light of a statement made by a source within the Sarno organization. This person said that Franks only has 30% of the stock, while Sarno controls the other 70% through his mother-in-law, Bertha Cooper (she is an officer of the corporation), in whose name the stock appears.

That theory seems to be substantiated by the claim that Sarno personally guaranteed payment on Diversified's behalf for the 100 pin ball machines it purchased from the Bally Company. This same source said that Circus Circus paid all the expenses of Peter Christiani, said to be a relative of Allen Dorfman, when he went to Italy to buy the bumper cars for Diversified. When questioned on these matters, Sarno refused to make any comment.

II ARIZONA

Records on file with Arizona agencies show that Cory Development, Inc., a Delaware corporation, was authorized to conduct business in the state in February, 1970. The address given for Cory is 838-D Merchandise Mart, Chicago. The president is Perry Franks of the same address. Documents in the Recorder's Office in Maricopa County show that Cory is involved with property in the Phoenix suburb of Mesa. To date, Cory is indebted to the Central States Pension Fund for $328,145.46 on this real estate, although earlier this year their indebtedness ran to $625,875. The property involved includes a shopping center, motel and golf course. The tangled history of this property and the Fund seems to be an accurate reflection of how the Fund is generally operated.

The first person to obtain Central States money on this property was Dean J. Briggs of Wichita, Kansas. Prior to the Arizona venture, Briggs had another dealing with the Fund. In 1959, he borrowed $1,400,000 from the Fund for oil lease and waterflood properties. At that time, a report from a geologist and engineer warned that high development costs might make the project uneconomical. Hoffa dismissed the consultants' report, and the loan was granted. Two years later, Briggs was in desperate trouble, and in order to salvage anything, the Fund had to dump in another $500,000–interest free. Even this apparent act of charity didn't help. By early 1972, Briggs' company–Supreme Petroleum–was taken over by the Fund with $1,200,000 still owed. But this bitter experience didn't close the Pension Fund door in Briggs' face.

$1.5 Million from the Fund

Another loan was granted to him in 1966. This one was for $1,500,000, and made to a company he controlled, Mesa Enterprises, Inc. The loan was granted for the property in Mesa just mentioned. By 1969, Mesa was $218,693 past due in payments to the Fund, and the Fund took over the property by foreclosing on it.

On February 1, 1970, two corporations entered into agreements with the Fund to take over this real estate. An Arizona corporation, Hestba, Inc., borrowed $1 million on a portion of it. Ted Herkes was the key person in the company then, but now it is controlled by Si Stern and James Peyton. They operate the Velda Rose Motor Hotel on their portion of the land. Earlier this year, Hestba was having problems repaying the Fund, and was $25,000 delinquent at one point.

The balance of the property went to Cory Development as security for a $615,000 loan. This agreement was signed by Perry Franks for Cory, and Francis Murtha, Executive Secretary of the Fund. Less than a year after this, Cory was in serious default on their payments: so much so, it appears, that they never took possession of the property as originally agreed to. This is the conclusion based upon a careful examination of a blizzard of documents filed in the Recorder's Office this past June 7. Although the complete details can never be learned until all the pertinent records are analyzed, enough exist to show what is most likely the correct explanation of events:

Unable to come up with the required cash to close the $615,000 deal originally signed, Cory proposed a new one. A portion of the property (now the Velda Rose Golf Course and Country Club) was sold to Community Golf Company, owned by Ross and J.A. Farnsworth, Jr. for $307,000, all of which was borrowed from the Pension Fund. For its part, Cory took that part which is now a shopping center. Cory's indebtedness to the Fund is now $328,145.46. A side agreement was that Community pay an additional $20,000 to Cory for the property.

No blatant example of fraud exists throughout these bizarre transactions, and perhaps the most one could suggest is that the loans were bad ones, and that mismanagement was the order of the day. But a close scrutiny of two items raises some interesting questions of ethics, if not criminal violations.

Morton Harris – Corporate Officer

On a Deed of Trust and Promissory Note signed between Cory and the Fund, two signatures appear on behalf of Cory. One is Perry Franks, president of Cory; the other is what appears to be Morton Harris, assistant secretary of the corporation. Reports filed in Arizona as required by law show only three persons appearing in the corporation: Perry Franks; his wife, Janet; and John P. Miller, an attorney from Milwaukee, who is listed as a director. Nowhere does Morton Harris appear as a corporate officer as his signature and title indicate. A lengthy search and signature verification, though, has disclosed who Morton Harris is and perhaps why he is not listed in the firm's annual filings in Arizona.

Morton Harris – Fund Lawyer

Morton J. Harris is the 56-year old partner in the Chicago law firm of Harris, Burman and Silets. This law firm, according to documents obtained by OVERDRIVE, has been paid over $270,000 within three years by the Central States Pension Fund. In addition, Harris, Burman and Silets defended Allen Dorfman when he was charged (and later convicted) on fraud and kickback counts, and they are currently involved in his appeal efforts. The amount of work performed by Harris and his partners for the Fund is not known, but fees of just about $100,000 per year indicate it is substantial. It was theorized that as a corporate officer of Cory, Harris was receiving a financial benefit. When contacted by OVERDRIVE, Harris refused to discuss his involvement with Cory. Perry Franks, when asked about Cory, referred OVERDRIVE to Mr. Harris, saying that he would not discuss the matter without Harris' approval.

Another intriguing point about Cory is that no such entity exists, according to the Illinois Corporate Directory. No such listing appears in Chicago phone books either. One reason may be that although Arizona has recognized Cory Development, Inc., the stationery with Perry Franks' signature shows the company as Cory Corporation. But this name, too, is unknown to state and local officials in Illinois. According to phone company records, however, the phone number appearing on Cory Corporation stationery – 527-5688 – is in the name of Thomson Trouser Company and Perry Franks.

Another Fund loan in Phoenix promoted by Dorfman may be near completion. OVERDRIVE has learned that Dorfman has been in touch several times recently with Herb Lieb, the owner of Kagel's Apparel, located in Park Central Mall in downtown Phoenix. Lieb, it has been discovered, has known Dorfman all his life. When questioned by OVERDRIVE, Lieb at first gave the impression that a loan had at least been discussed with Dorfman, but then later denied that he knew anything about a Fund loan. He did say, however, that he would get in touch with Dorfman about the subject.

III – NEW MEXICO

Deming, a small town in southcentral New Mexico, may seem out of place in such a tale, but it is here that the ties with organized crime elements in Chicago, Circus Circus and the Pension Fund are perhaps most strikingly illustrated. In addition, evidence of the waste of the memberships' money is painfully abundant.

The money that went into Deming illustrates one of the most complicated transactions engaged in by the Fund. In 1959, the City of Deming issued $4,500,000 in bonds so that new industry could be lured to the area. The arrangement was that outside interests would purchase the bonds, and Deming would use the money to build or purchase the plant needed by the new company which would then move in from another state. Deming then would lease the tax-free plant to the company. The lease payments would be used to pay off the principal and interest on the bonds. Besides the tax-free plant paid for by others, the newly-located company would enjoy the low-wage labor available from the nearby Mexican border.

Auburn Rubber Company, a toy manufacturer from Indiana, was brought into Deming this way. Out of the $4.5 million in bonds, the Central States Pension Fund purchased $2,628,000 worth of them. As soon as Auburn came to Deming, the first of a series of problems arose. The AFL-CIO's United Rubber Workers Union, which had represented Auburn's employees in Indiana, followed the plant to New Mexico, determined to organize them there. When Hoffa learned this, he sent Teamsters organizers to counter the effort.

Teamsters "Represent" Workers and Management

After the first NLRB election to determine who would represent the workers, the votes showed a tie. At this point, the Chicago broker who had negotiated the bond sale to the Fund flew into Deming. He warned that if the Teamsters lost, Auburn would move out. At the next election, the Teamsters won. During the next few years, Hoffa kept at least two organizers in Deming and built a two-story building for the new Local– all for Auburn's 300 employees. Hoffa never was troubled, it seems, about the conflict of interest in supposedly representing the employers and financing management at the same time. Even now, there are several Fund loans outstanding to firms whose employees are "represented" by the Teamsters.

Financial complications were not long in coming to Auburn. So serious were they that Hoffa hired an industrial consultant to investigate the situation. That report, by Dr. Malcolm H. Gotterer, was dated March 2, 1962, and entitled "Report to Local Union No. 292 in Deming, New Mexico." The report was extremely critical of the way Auburn was operated, and concluded with this recommendation: "The only solution to the managerial problem in this company would be the replacement of the president and manufacturing manager." That Hoffa ignored the report is evidenced by the fact that the same management remained, and by August of 1963 the Pension Fund pumped more money into Deming in the form of a $1,500,000 loan to Auburn.

Borrower Out of Business

Auburn's financial situation worsened each year, and in 1969, the Fund foreclosed on the hopelessly delinquent loan, as Auburn went under. At the time Auburn took its final dive, it owed the Fund $5,231,754 (including interest), which was $1,070,354 more than was loaned in the first place. The Fund was now the owner of some machinery in an empty building situated near Deming's airport.

But the building didn't stay dark for long. In the summer of 1971, an Illinois corporation called Gaylur Products, Inc., took over the indebtedness left by Auburn, and began production of various plastic items. So far, they employ about 40 workers. Information obtained shows these persons from Chicago control Gaylur: Ron De Angeles, vice-president, and Jack Weiner, consultant, both of whom moved to Deming in 1971, Erwin S. Weiner, president, and Joseph Cosentino, treasurer, who live in Chicago.

In addition to their Chicago background, OVERDRIVE's investigation has revealed something else they have in common: all are close, socially and businesswise, with Allen Dorfman. More importantly, all four are members of Alderisio's organized crime syndicate in Chicago.

Organized Crime in Deming

The company name is an interesting one. De Angeles has been quoted as saying: "The name doesn't mean anything. We just picked it when we started here." Such an unusual name has considerably more meaning than De Angeles would have anyone believe. It happens to be very similar to Gaylur Mercantile Corporation in Chicago. This company has been known for years as a front for Felix (Milwaukee Phil) Alderisio. Although Harold Lurie (an ex-convict who served time for fraud) appears on corporate papers, it has been learned that Alderisio controlled it until his death. Control has now passed to others in his organization, according to several sources. Even the information required to be filed with Illinois is incomplete on Gaylur's report. One observer commented that it was a "surprise to me that this report was accepted (by the Illinois Secretary of State) in such a manner."

COUNTY TREASURER

Syndicate's Electronics Expert

Gaylur in Chicago recently turned up in the Clark County Recorder's Office. There, documents show that Gaylur Mercantile Corporation paid delinquent taxes on Alderisio's behalf for two of the five pieces of property he owns in Las Vegas. This property was tied up by the IRS on October 25, though, when it filed a $2,784,510 tax lien against Alderisio's estate.

De Angeles' connections with Alderisio run considerably deeper. He has been identified as a working member of the organized crime syndicate in Chicago, and is a friend of Anthony Spilotro and Joseph Lombardo. In law enforcement circles, De Angeles is known as the "electronics wizard" and bugging expert for the syndicate. Not too long ago, De Angeles was grabbed while operating a yacht full of sensitive electronics gear in Lake Michigan. He just happened to be near the secret communications center of the Chicago Police Department's Intelligence Unit. Police theorized that De Angeles was attempting to intercept messages connected with their surveillance of organized crime. Before leaving Chicago for Deming, De Angeles owned World Wide Electronics Communications in the Chicago suburb of Melrose Park.

Ron De Angeles, implicated in a syndicate-ordered execution, is a member of Chicago's organized crime structure. He is also an officer of a company with a Pension Fund loan, as well a friend of Allen Dorfman.

Frank Schweihs– Thief, Hijacker, Etc.

The president of Gaylur Products, Erwin Weiner, has long been identified as a business associate of Alderisio. Weiner is shown as the owner, along with Louis Volin, of American Bonding Agency in Chicago, a favorite place to call if you happened to be a syndicate member under arrest. Tony Spilotro, in fact, was once arrested at Weiner's office by the FBI. Another close associate of both Weiner and Spilotro is Frank Schweihs (pronounced Shwaaz), who is known as a thief, hijacker and juice collector for the Alderisio organization.

Joseph Cosentino is considered to be an associate of persons in the Alderisio organization. Although public records don't show it, Cosentino is known to have claimed ownership in American Bonding Agency. Jack Weiner (Erwin's brother) is said to be connected with the Chicago syndicate.

Close Ties of Mobsters

An incident occurred in Los Angeles in 1967 which links Ron De Angeles, Anthony Spilotro, Joseph Lombardo and Frank Schweihs together quite closely. The details of this episode have not been published before.

In the early '60's, a member of Chicago's mob, Jerry Covelli, turned government witness against some of his colleagues. After the successful prosecution of the case, Covelli was provided with a new name and plastic surgery. He turned up in the Los Angeles suburb of Encino, living under the name of Gerald Burgess. According to published accounts at the time, Covelli was killed in his carport on June 18, 1967, when a bomb exploded as he started his car.

Detailed information provided by sources to OVERDRIVE, though, shows a marked variance from this account. According to this information:

Steve Keno, a small-time hoodlum friend of Covelli's, noticed two boxes connected by wires under the front seat of Covelli's Thunderbird on that date. When Covelli saw them, he immediately thought the FBI bugged the car. He had Keno drive him to a phone booth nearby where he was told by that agency that they hadn't done such a thing. Deciding to go back to his house, Covelli got behind the wheel, the first time he had done so that day. Earlier in the day, Keno and his wife, along with Covelli's son, had used the car.

Syndicate Execution of Informer

Near his home, he noticed a green 1963 Pontiac following them. He told Keno to get the license plate number, but the car stayed back far enough to prevent that. Covelli turned onto Royal Mount Drive, where he lived, and the Pontiac continued on the other street. At that moment, an explosion ripped the car, blowing Covelli in half and throwing Keno out the passenger side, seriously injured.

Analysis later showed that the explosion was caused by a bomb under the front seat– a remote control radio-operated bomb built by an expert. Several sources provided information which showed that shortly before Covelli's death, Ron De Angeles, the mob's electronics expert, Anthony Spilotro, Joseph Lombardo and Frank Schweihs, were in the area, in a green car. Persons familiar with the killing have no doubt that it was a "hit" ordered by the Chicago syndicate in retaliation for Covelli's testimony against them. And these same sources also state that they believe De Angeles, together with the others, was imported to do the job. They hasten to add, though, that a successful prosecution couldn't be made until someone close to the killing does what Covelli did– turn informer.

IV – MICHIGAN

Yet another scheme involving the Fund, Dorfman and the same organized crime group has been uncovered. This one concerns a company called I Inn Manufacturing Company in White Pigeon, Michigan, a small village in the southern part of the state near the Indiana line. I Inn, it has been learned, took over the buildings used by Topper Industries, a company recently gone bankrupt.

From what little information is available, the company was supposed to have manufactured hot dog stands. But no one in the area actually knows what they did, if anything. The company first opened its doors in May, 1972, but by September they had disappeared, following OVERDRIVE's inquiries. No one in White Pigeon knew what they did, nor did anyone in the surrounding areas.

Records checked at the Michigan Corporation Commission and Michigan Treasury Department in Lansing show that no such company ever existed.

An Old Syndicate Trick

OVERDRIVE has learned, though, that Joseph Lombardo was listed as president, although he spelled his name as "Lombardi." While in White Pigeon, it is known that Lombardo was in contact with Allen Dorfman on a number of occasions, and was observed carrying a large wad of bills at times. Another person known as a corporate officer was Victor Spilarto from Chicago, Another spelling for the same individual, however, shows the name as "Spiloito." Deliberate misspelling of names is an old syndicate trick to make investigations harder to conduct, and it has been suggested that this person is actually Anthony Spilotro or one of his brothers. A similar kind of confusion was found in Las Vegas. Anthony Spilotro's 1972 Lincoln Mark IV is registered to A & P Leasing c/o Spilotro. But A & P Leasing doesn't exist, according to Nevada records. It was finally located at 2500 North Avenue in the Chicago suburb of Melrose Park. This is also the address of Al Piemonte Ford, Inc. Whose associations have raised some eyebrows.

Another person connected with I Inn is Joseph Cosentino who is the treasurer of Gaylur in Deming. Harold Rowley has also been seen with Lombardo in White Pigeon. He was connected with Topper prior to their bankruptcy.

Analysis of Syndicate Schemes

The continued presence of Allen Dorfman throughout all these transactions leads to more than speculation that Pension Fund loans made to individuals and businesses "friendly" with him are but a part of financing the ventures of organized crime. Investigation of Dorfman's current activities strongly indicate that this is the case. At Circus Circus, it appears that members of the Chicago syndicate had been conducting, or were planning to conduct, loansharking, gambling and skimming. In Arizona, Perry Frank's ties with Dorfman and Sarno may indicate nothing more than a transaction between friends; at worst, a clever front man operation on behalf of the syndicate. Inasmuch as no hard evidence is available now to support the latter theory, it must be discarded. The I Inn Manufacturing operation appeared at first to be indicative of the scams (mob slang for bankruptcy fraud or variations of it) the Alderisio organization is noted for (Alderisio was known as "King of Scams"): start a new business with excellent (but phony) credit references, order merchandise and sell it quickly, and when the bills come in, bankrupt the company. For reasons unknown, though, I Inn was in and out of business without apparently having done anything at all. Gaylur Products in Deming, however, may well be the site of such a scheme.

Probable Bankruptcy Fraud

It is well to remember that Gaylur's predecessor, Auburn Rubber, was an established company with experience in its field. Yet Auburn was plagued with constant financial troubles which eventually sent it under, owing the Fund over a million dollars more than it originally borrowed. At its peak, Auburn employed 300 people.

Gaylur, on the other hand, is operated by persons without the manufacturing history of Auburn. Additionaly, most are notorious organized crime figures. Gaylur has supposedly taken over the indebtedness of Auburn, although there is no record of that in the courthouse records of Luna County. It should also be noted that Gaylur employs a scant 40 people in the same building Auburn had 300. In addition, persons who have seen their plant in operation say that there isn't anything specific, but the feeling is given that Gaylur isn't doing the volume of work they claim. Other information obtained seems to indicate this is more than simply a manufacturing plant.

A source within the Pension Fund has disclosed that Gaylur borrowed close to a million dollars in 1971 (this is in addition to their assumption of the indebtedness left by Auburn). Further, according to this source, no security was given for the loan, nor does it appear in Fund records available to the trustees. A check of the records in New Mexico's Luna County show no trace of this transaction ever being recorded. The fact that this loan has been hidden is of keen interest to federal investigators digging into Gaylur's operations.

According to Ron De Angeles, Gaylur has a $41,000 Bellanca airplane. But documents unearthed by OVERDRIVE show that this plane is registered in De Angeles' name. Another set of records in Deming disclose another curious transaction involving the house De Angeles has in Deming. Title to the property on which it is located was first transferred from the contractor to R & D Engineering, a company owned by De Angeles. Shortly afterwards, it went to Gaylur Products. Gaylur, in turn, deeded it to De Angeles, in whose name it now appears. One affidavit on file states that De Angeles is the sole proprietor of Gaylur, an interesting view in light of the fact that Gaylur claims to be a corporation.

Based upon the information obtained from documents and interviews, OVERDRIVE has theorized that what will happen at Gaylur is that those involved may be about to engage in bankruptcy fraud. The company will proceed normally for a while, then "problems" will arise, forcing Gaylur to go out of business. The loan will not have been paid off, of course, but the assets will have vanished. The fact that Dorfman has been in and out of Deming Municipal Airport in the Pension Fund jet a number of times indicates that this day may not be far off.

Bolstering this argument is the fact that federal investigators are looking hard at Gaylur and its operation. Such a pattern has occurred in the past with Fund loans. Considering the background of those with Gaylur, there is ample reason to expect the same with that company, as well as others.

MOVIE REVIEW

DELIVERANCE

This story from the best seller by James Dickey has been turned into a superb motion picture that rivals THE GODFATHER for Best Film of the Year. What does DELIVERANCE have in it that makes it so great?: action, suspense, adventure, outstanding photography, acting, writing, directing—the works!

We'd have to conduct a lengthy search over the past ten years to find another motion picture truckers would appreciate so much. Basically, it's about three average Georgia big city fellows who decide to take a weekend canoe trip through the treacherous rapids of Georgia's largest river. Their experience turns into a frightening, tension-filled tragedy guaranteed to hold your attention throughout. You'd better get your popcorn and cola prior to the start of the film because, once it begins, you won't want to leave your seat for a single second.

Jon Voight and Burt Reynolds share starring roles in exciting and outstanding performances. DELIVERANCE takes us on an adventure we would all like to take despite its unforeseen and horrible dangers. The river represents one of the last refuges of the American wilderness, an unrelenting and untamed product of nature that man wants to conquer. Unfortunately, for our heroes, murder intrudes in their lives, along with the danger of the rapids.

DELIVERANCE may prove to be too brutal for the ladies. Its language is raw and earthy, its manner is violent and bloody. However, its strength cannot be denied and truckers will see themselves in those canoes battling against the odds of death in this outstanding saga of modern man trapped in what seems to be a never-ending situation of pending disaster. Leave the kids at home and prepare yourself for a good evening with DELIVERANCE.

Address where offense occurred: 2805 N. Humboldt Ave. (rear of)

Date of Offense 9-27-72

Explain in detail what work was done on the case:

I interviewed Anthony Fazio, brother of the deceased, and he states that on Thursday, March 15, 1973, he had occasion to go to the Center Stage Lounge, which is owned and operated by Mr. Frank Balistreri, to set up a party that was to be held on March 19, 1973, by the Restaurant Owners' Association. While there, Tony Fazio states that he talked with Frank Balistreri regarding his brother, Louis, who was shot and killed on September 27, 1972. Mr. Balistreri related to him that the reason that Louis got killed was that he talked too much to the wrong people. At this time, Mr. Tony Fazio did not delve into this statement too much, as Mr. Balistreri stated that at some later date, when they had time to sit down and talk, that he would talk with him and tell him about it. However, one name that came up during the conversation and seemed to be implied by Mr. Balistreri as one of the "wrong people", Louis Fazio had talked to, was that of Howard Meister. It is known that sometime in the past, Howard Meister, supposedly living at the present time in Honolulu, Hawaii, was on very friendly terms with Sally Papia, who runs Sally's Restaurant located in the Kaiser-Knickerbocker Hotel on E. Juneau Ave., Milwaukee. Another thing that was mentioned in the conversation with Mr. Balistreri is that no one seemed to care about how much money he lost while he was in prison at Sandstone, Minnesota, on a Federal charge that he served time for. Mr. Balistreri seemed as if he were quite peeved with the other people of Italian origin who were here, in Milwaukee, at that time, and claims that he was cheated out of a lot of money, that if he had not been in prison at the time, that he could have had half ownership in a tuna boat. Mr. Fazio believes that Mr. Balistreri was referring to the large tuna boat that is owned by Andrew Lococo, a former Milwaukeean, now residing somewhere in California.

Explain in detail what work was done on the case:

Mr. Fazio states that he will try to set up another meeting with Mr. Frank Balistreri to see if he can give him more information as to the possible reason his brother, Louis, was killed and if he did talk too much to the "wrong people", to find out what he did say and to whom it was said that might have caused his death. Investigation is pending at this time, until further information is obtained by Mr. Anthony Fagio.

One more thing brought up in the conversation between Mr. Fazio and Mr. Balistreri, was a statement by Mr. Frank Balistreri that he was not particularly happy with the way Jimmy Fazio, who is the owner and operator of Jimmy's House of Prime Ribs, in Fort Lauderdale, Florida, was acting there, when he went down to Florida to see him. Mr. Balistreri did not elaborate on this to Tony Fazio or what he meant by the statement. Also, Mr. Balistreri inferred to Tony Fazio that he should ask his brother, Angelo Fazio, for more details on this, and indicated that Angelo possibly knows more than he is telling his brothers or the police.

Explain in detail what work was done on the case:

On Friday, April 13, 1973, I met with number 2 special men, Thomas Kondrakiewicz and Patrolman Billy Hacker, at #2 District Station, in regard to information they had received from an informant. We went to the area of 15th and Oklahoma Ave., where I met with their informant, who wishes to remain anonymous, regarding some statements he had heard pertaining to the above offense. In talking to this informant of Patrolmen Kondrakiewicz and Hacker, it became quite evident, from the names he mentioned, that he had no information regarding the Louis Fazio murder. He admits that he is acquainted with some of the Italians of the East Side, and at one time, tended bar for Tommy Fish at a tavern called "Fish's Harbor". The information that this informant has supplied to Patrolmen Hacker and Kondrakiewicz is information that has been published in the newspapers and speculation picked up in various taverns in the city. This informant cannot give any definite information regarding the murder of Louis Fazio and it is very obvious that he wants to help in some way, but is in no position to, at this time. He was thanked for his cooperation with the Police Department, and was told that any information that he receives in the future, would be gladly accepted by any Officer with our Department.

Shafton had payed two men, he stated, to enter the home of Eddie Siegel and kill him after the Milwaukee Grand Jury investigating automobile theft tests was underway. He stated that he had talked for several days with Robert Walberg , regarding many things and he had mentioned the fact that Shafton wanted to kill the Hamilton woman sometime ago, and that Shafton had hired two men to break into the home of Eddie Siegel and kill him, however, the information about Fazio was something new. Explain in detail what work was done on the case:

On Wednesday, May 2, 1973 we travelled to Saukville, Wisconsin in an attempt to interview a Harry DeAngelo. His name had come up recently in the investigation of Louis Fazzio's murder. We found that subject Harry DeAngelo who lives on the northwest corner of Highway O and Cedar Sauk Rd. in Ozaukee County. This house is located about 4 miles north of Grafton and just south of Saukville.

We talked with a neighbor of Mr. DeAngelo as we were unable to find anyone at home. The neighbor's name is Pfiffer who lives across the street from Mr. DeAngelo. He states that Mr. DeAngelo works for a contractor but doesn't know who. Stated that Mr. DeAngelo has been laid off for two weeks and leaves the house nearly every morning about 9:00AM and come back rather late as he never sees him when he returns. He drives a 1970, red, Cadillac. States that he does not know too much about the operations of Mr. DeAngelo, except that he is well liked by him. States that his son, Norman DeAngelo, who lives first house north of Harry's house. We attempted also to find someone at this house but were unable to.

We also contacted Chief of Police, Howard Thiede, of Grafton, Wisconsin. He states that he knows Harry DeAngelo from driving through the village of Grafton, but that is all he knows about him. States that he was under the impression that Mr. DeAngelo was some bigshot in the local union 48 here in Milwaukee, however, he was not sure about this. He called the retired Chief of Saukville, a Mr. Jacoby, and asked him if he knew much about Harry DeAngelo. He stated that Harry DeAngelo was formerly a garbage collector here in Milwaukee and had lived out in Saukville for a number of years and that the City of Milwaukee had found out that he was using a mailing address in Milwaukee as his home when in reality he was living in Saukville

On Thursday evening, December 28, 1972, at approximately 11:00 P.M., I was called by Patrolman Brandenburg to come to the station in my own car as the officers on duty were on a call of a man carrying a concealed weapon at the Hutch Tavern located at 1321 Wisconsin Avenue, Village of Grafton. Upon my arrival at the station, Patrolman Bierman had in custody in the Squad Room one Phillip H. DeAngelo. What had transpired prior to my arrival was that our police station received a call from a customer at the Hutch Tavern stating that a man was in there and had a gun on his person. Ptl. Bierman, Holton and Smukowski responded to the call with Bierman entering the establishment in the rear, Holton and Smukowski entering in the front. Upon entering the tavern, the questionable suspect was seated at the bar alongside the front of the windows at the tavern. He was clothed in a jacket and a black cowboy hat. A grip of an apparent revolver was seen sticking out of the man's right hip pocket. Ptl. Holton requested the man to step outside and as he rose off the bar seat, the gun was taken from his pocket by Ptl. Holton. The suspect was taken outside and there given his Miranda rights and taken to the police station I informed Ptl. Bierman that the man should be placed under arrest for carrying a concealed weapon and fingerprinted. I then went to the Hutch Tavern to talk to the proprietor, and any other witnesses.

stated that the person in question, Mr. DeAngelo, came into the tavern, had a drink and just had a suspicious air about him. He stated that he was staring quite annoyingly at women patrons of the tavern and at Mr. wife. A short time after DeAngelo arrived in the tavern, a gang of people that had completed bowling had come into the tavern. One of these persons, Jack Bartlett. When they came into the tavern, DeAngelo was in the Men's Room and, of course, left his bar seat vacant. When he came back, Mr. Jack Bartlett apparently was standing in the place where DeAngelo was seated, and he shoved Bartlett away and words were exchanged between the two parties. DeAngelo was then requested by Bartlett and a party by the name of Emil Vollmer, who was with the Bartletts, to move to the end of the bar and allow room for these people to get together and shake dice. DeAngelo did so, arriving in his position where he was observed by the three officers when they entered the tavern. However, words were again exchanged between DeAngelo and Bartlett, after which DeAngelo went outside leaving his beer and change on the bar, indicating that he would return. At this time stated that he and the individual tending bar, Jerome Kroeger, looked out of the window and saw the suspect go into his vehicle, that being a Pinto Station Wagon, open the glove compartment to take something black out and stick it in his back pocket. He then returned to the bar. Shortly thereafter stated that Jack Bartlett came to him and stated the party had a gun in his pocket. A call was subsequently sent to our station and resulted in DeAngelo's apprehension.

I then returned to the station where DeAngelo was handcuffed and taken to Ozaukee County Headquarters. Upon questioning as to why he had the weapon in his pocket, he said he uses it to shoot cattle and snakes. Also stated there was nothing wrong in carrying the gun as it was not concealed. He stated he did not have any bullets for the weapon, therefore it was harmless. Although DeAngelo had been drinking he did not seem to be intoxicated, but he was talking quite irrational. Said he owned a home at 25021 Highway O in Saukville. Later investigation yielded no such address. Also said that he had several diamonds in his car, value about 15 to 18 bills. These were not found. He said he was a Navy fighter pilot in 1944 or 45; according to his date of birth he would be 14 to 15 at that time. Upon mentioning this to him, he said he started early.

It was very difficult to get rationality of many of the statements

Mr. DeAngelo came out with. He said that he and Art, meaning the Sheriff, were very close friends and grew up together, and that he would see him and have this situation straightened out.

Upon booking procedures, at times, became belligerent and then again agreeable. He accused us of saying things to him that were never said, and not giving him his constitutional rights of an expedient trial. He wanted to see a judge immediately. From a pay telephone in the hall of the Sheriff's Department, he was allowed to make a phone call and he did to Ozaukee County Sheriff's Department, requesting to speak to Sheriff Helm or his wife, who he claimed was his niece, and shortly after claimed was his sister. Mr. DeAngelo said he had three children, between the ages of nine and fifteen that were home alone in his home in Saukville. If anything happened to the kids he stated, he would blame us. We asked him numerous times if he had anybody we could call to care for the children, or if we should stop by and make sure everything was okay. He denied any help from us in any way, manner or form. He was asked frequently why he had the gun on his person or why he even carried it. He said the only reason he carried it was to shoot rattlesnakes. Upon returning to Grafton, I met with Jack Bartlett, mentioned previously in this report. They stated the identical story as earlier did. Bartlett and his wife both stated that when DeAngelo came into the tavern after he went to his car, they did not see any gun, but did notice a bulge in his right hip pocket. After he opened his jacket, he sat down, they then saw just the partial handle of the gun appearing from his back pocket, so the gun was definitely concealed.

I later received information from Sgt. Langlois, Ozaukee County Sheriff's Department, that a relative of Mr. DeAngelo may be an Arthur Muenchow of Cedarburg. I found Muenchow listed at 804 North Water Street, phone number of 377-1499. Called the residence and found this to be the father-in-law of Phillip H. DeAngelo. I spoke with Mrs. Arthur Muenchow. Stated she had DeAngelo's children there, ages 10, 13 and 15. That he had come from California to visit them, his wife still being on the west coast. According to Mrs. Muenchow, but she did state it sounded as though he had been drinking. They will check into his situation the A.M. of December 29, 1972.

Explain in detail what work was done on the case:

On Sunday, May 20, 1973, I interviewed Sam Shafton, at his office, Room 903 of the Empire Building at N. Plankington and W. Wisconsin Avenue. I questioned Mr. Shafton regarding information that we had received from Robert Walberg, who is serving time in the County Jail, which was to the effect that shortly before Fazio had been killed, that he had been offered $5,000.00 by Sam Shafton to kill Louis Fazio.

Mr. Shafton denied ever being really well acquainted with Louis Fazio. He stated that he had met him on one occasion and was just introduced to him one time and had never spoken to him at any great extent. He stated that he believed the fact that Robert Walberg was a mental case and that he is the chief witness for the United States Government in a Federal case for Interstate Transportation of Stolen Merchandise in which some diamonds which were taken in a burglary in Milwaukee were conveyed to Chicago, Ill., and Mr. Walberg is testifying for the Federal government that he was the burglar that had burglarized the jewelry store and gave the diamonds to Sam Shafton to take to Chicago. He stated that he has heard nothing regarding who, or why, Mr. Fazio was killed. He denied being involved himself. Mr. Shafton stated that he has several felony cases pending in Milwaukee County courts in addition to the Federal case. He stated that he can be reached at any time. Regarding: Louis Fazio Murder

Wanted for: Information re Rocco Youse

Information He referred to a second letter he received from Inspector Woelfel regarding the Louis Fazio murder and requesting information concerning Rocco Youse. The first letter they received was dated Dec. 18, 1972, and he was under the impression that it had been answered. He stated we are asking for their file on Rocco Youse, but their file contains so much garbage that it would take a Philadelphia lawer to figure it out. We are interested particularly in two places of business and another individual. They could give us the connection that they believe Youse has with the two places of business in Reno and the individual names. Their file contains so much information from other agencies they would have to go back to the origin of the information in their files to get the approval to release it all. And most of it is hearsay and garbage. Rocco Youse is out of Menomonee Falls originally and he came to Reno and started the Del Chemical Co. Many agencies, particularly the IRS, have been looking into him, and it is his understanding that he has been indicted here for something. The IRS and the FBI in Milwaukee should have a file on him and should have all the information their file contains. Their file is so heavy, it would be too expensive to send. I advised him I would contact the men who are working on this investigation, and if they need any more information we will contact them again. I thanked him for calling, and our conversation was terminated.

Explain in detail what work was done on the case:

On Friday, 8/10/73 at 10:00AM, myself in company with Det. Thomas Hultgren interviewed the following persons:

W/M, of E. Circle Rd., Mequon, Wisconsin. This interview took place at home. At this time, we showed him pictures of Frank Diesler, Frank's wife and a Karen Puff and asked him if he knew anyone on these pictures. He viewed the pictures for several minutes and then stated that he did not know anyone on the pictures. He indicated to us as to why we were here showing him this picture, and we just told him to look at the pictures at which time we would let him know. He again repeated that he did not know anyone in the pictures. We then asked him if he knew a Tom DiQuarto who has a pizza restaurant at 656 N. Washington Avenue in Cedarburg. He stated that he may have seen Tom once but right now he couldn't pick Tom out of five guys in a row. He wouldn't know which was Tom DiQuarto. He did state that he has known Thomas's father Sam DiQuarto for years as Sam did business with the Glorioso's at their store, buying cheese, meats, and etc. for his various pizza parlors. He again asked why we were there. We then informed him that the man in the picture Frank Diesler had implicated him, also known as and Tom DiQuarto in the murder of Louie Fazio. We stated that Frank had told us that Tom DiQuarto and had set up the deal with Frank as Louie Fazio was suppose to have 15 to 20 thousand dollars on him from gambling money, and it was going to be a three-way split. We advised that the night of the actual murder, it was Frank Diesler and Tom DiQuarto and that Tom DiQuarto went and did the actual murder and the next day Tom DiQuarto gave Frank Dielser 15 hundred dollars, which was his share. was shocked and surprised that we would even associate him with such a thing. He said, "I should get involved in a murder for $5,000, you've got to be crazy." He said, "Idon't even know Tom DiQuarto or this guy in the picture." We told him that Frank Diesler was involved in a janitorial service and also sold insurance and maybe he had come in contact with him in that way. He emphatically stated that he did not know him at all. We then asked him if he knew Tom DiQuarto and he stated, "he had to us all ready that he wouldn't know him if he saw him" and he said, "I would sure like to meet this Frank Diesler face to face because the guy must be goofy to implicate me." He said, "How come he is implicating people that run pizza restaurants." He then stated that he knows a lot of people but a lot more people know him as a lot of people come into his restaurant on East Brady Street, and this man could have been in there and saw him, but for any reason why Frank Diesler is involving him with Tom DiQuarto in this he has no idea. During our entire questioning of him and showing the picture initially, we watched his face and his eyes and at no time was there any sign of recognition while looking at the pictures or while telling him why this interview was taking place. We asked him if he had any dealing with Tom Diquarto and he again stated he did not know him. He knows that he is the younger son of Sam DiQuarto. We then told him that we would continue checking, but at this time we were sure he was in no way involved with the murder of Louie Fazio. We then asked him his opinion as to what happened to Louie Fazio, and he stated he must have done something wrong otherwise it wouldn't happen. We asked him to elaborate, and just said, "Hey, he did something wrong, you guys know the story. You do something wrong and you get hurt or hit." We left it at that.

From our personal observation, we are sure that also known as is not involved with the Louie Fazio murder or in any way involved with Tom DiQuarto and does not know Frank Diesler.

Explain in detail what work was done on the case:

On August 14, 1973, while we were at the Iron Horse Restaurant West, located at N. Lover's Lane and Blue Mound Roads, talking with the brother of the victim, Tony Fazio, he received a phone call at 3:00PM, from a person who refused to identify himself. This call was monitored by Det. Snead Carroll via an extenion phone. The caller stated that he had recently gotten out of the County Jail and that he had some information for Tony Fazio regarding the death of his brother, Louis. He stated that he knew who had killed his brother and the reason for killing him. Tony Fazio stated to the caller that there was a very large monetary reward for information about the person(s) responsible for the death of Louis Fazio and that he would be glad to talk to this caller. The anonymous caller then stated that he would meet Tony Fazio at the restaurant sometime that evening but stressed that he did not want any Police Officers at the meeting. Tony Fazio agreed to this condition and at 1:00AM, date, (8-15-73), a Person known to this Department as Keith Froemming, who is a known burglar and holdup man in the Milwaukee area, came into the Iron Horse Restaurant operated by Mr. Tony Fazio. This person sat down together with Mr. Fazio and stated that he had been in the County Jail recently and had overheard, in a conversation, that a Wayne Casper, also a prisoner in the County Jail, admitted that he had killed Louis Fazio, because Louis Fazio had been "fooling around" with his (Casper's) wife. He further stated that he had walked to the end of the Government Breakwater and thrown the murder weapon, a gun, into the water. Mr. Fazio attempted to get more information from Mr. Froemming but the only other information that he could get at that time, was that this story could be backed up by another person by the name of Richard Deback, who was also on the tier at the time (at the County Jail).

Explain in detail what work was done on the case:

The information which Tony Fazio received from Keith Froemming, was relayed by telephone to Det. Lt. Roy Bachmann. On Wednesday, August 15, 1973, at approximately 9:30AM, Detectives Snead Carroll, Edward McHugh and Det. Lt. Roy Bachmann, went to the County Jail and had conversation with one Frank Deisler, who is incarcerated at 8 South. It is to be noted that Keith Froemming was in the 8 South Tier along with Mr. Deisler and Richard DeBack. Deback is awaiting trial on burglary charges and Froemming is awaiting trial on armed robbery and burglary charges. Frank Deisler has, in the past, told several stories about information he had on who killed Louis Fazio and Detectives Adamczewski and Hultgren and Det. Lt. Tom Thelen investigated this end.

Our Department is in receipt of information from the Federal Bureau of Investigation that states, from an FBI Agent in their New York Office that Frank Deisler had previously received immunity for his testimony in the prosecution of numerous bank robbers and Post Office burglars in the eastern district of New York. The agent states that Deisler received complete immunity for his testimony and that of the eight individuals, including Deisler, who was involved in the bank robberies, all are either dead or serving prison sentences, with the exception of a Ronald Francis Samoray, FBI #461035C, who received a 20 year sentence, execution suspended, indicating that Samoray might have talked also. It is further noted that when Deisler initially furnished information to FBI Agents concerning the New York bank robberies, he falsely implicated two individuals who were not involved, because of a personal grudge he held against them, and it was only after independent investigation disclosed the true identities of the other unknown subjects in these bank robberies, did Deisler furnish correct information in that regard. It seems that Deisler may be trying to engage in similar maneuvers in the trouble he is in, in our city. This possibility was made known to Deisler, when we informed him we were aware of Ronald Francis Samoray, and he seemed visibly startled by our knowledge of his background of lies in previous cases. We showed him numerous pictures of known hoodlums in the Milwaukee area and he refused to identify anybody. Included in these pictures, was the photo of WalterBrace, whose name

He (Deisler) stated that he did not know the individual in the picture and had never seen him before. However, this is the same Schafer who, he stated, worked for the Transport Co. This information was all taken to the District Attorney's Office and District Attorney E. Michael McCann stated that he is not willing to listen to this man any further; that on one other occasion Mr. McCann had received a letter from Frank Deisler stating that he had gotten information that Ben Sanders, recently convicted of murdering two Milwaukee Police Officers, admitted that he had killed these two Police Officers. It would seem that Mr. Deisler is trying to use important cases in the courts to gain recognition for himself in the matters pending against him. It is our conclusion that Frank Deisler is a liar and has no knowledge at all about Louis Fazio or the person(s) who killed him.

Explain in detail what work was done on the case:

On or about August 1, 1970, I moved into 1100 West Wells St., Apt. #1511. While living at that location, I would, on occasion, patronize the Iron Horse Restaurant and bar, located on the first floor of the building. One night, while eating there with my wife, Louis Fazio, whom we did not know at the time, introduced himself to us as the owner. From that time on, my wife and I would acknowledge his greetings, etc. if he was there when we entered or left the premises. Because we lived in the building, we would eat in the Restaurant several times a month or have carry-out orders to take to our apartment. At all times, Mr. Fazio was cordial in our presence. He was also aware that we both were employed by the Milwaukee Police Department. The only other people we knew there were the hostess (Marion), a bartende named Chuck, and the German cook, Gary. Some of the waitresses we knew on sight but cannot recall any of their names at this time.

On several occasions, while on duty walking beats #11 & #34, and also off duty, I would observe men by the names of (in the company of his wife, usually), Tony Macci, Joe LaMont, a man whose last name is DeGeorgio, and Louie Sangor frequent the Restaurant approximately 4-5 times a week - hours from 11:00 PM to closing. They would all be sitting with Louis Fazio in the Restaurant.

My acquaintence with Fazio was that of a casual nature and at no time did we socialize together, either at his place of business or my residence. I moved from the building on or about August 29, 1972.

She stated that she knew Louis FAZIO, as she and her husband ate in his restaurant and also sat at the bar and had numerous drinks. She stated that he never made any advances to her and that he was very friendly with her. She stated that prior to December of 1971, for approximately 13 or 14 months, besides working in an office she also worked as a waitress at the Mayfair Motel on Hwy 100, and she worked there from 5:00PM to 11:00PM, nights, and on Saturdays, all day, so she actually did not see that much of Mr. Fazio. We asked her if she knew any of the bartenders and she stated that she only knew one who they called "Bob the drunk" and another called Asked if she knew Jimmy JENNARO, she said yes she did know him, as her husband, Robert, had tended bar for him at the Ad Lib, for approximately sixmonths in 1970, just before he was drafted into the Army. as attending any parties in the building, namely in the apartment of one Henry NITZSCHE, she stated that she was never at any parties in the building. I asked if she knew anyone else who lived in the building and she stated she knew the two Police personnel who were married to each other; she thought his name was Stewart or Stu and her name was an unusual one which began with a "Z". She knew their last name as "Honeck". She was never at any parties with the two of them or either one alone. She said they were very friendly toward her and her husband, but they never went out socially. I again asked her if she had been to any parties, particularly with Louis Fazio and she denied ever having attended any party with him. She stated that usually she came home late at night and most times, she would simply take a sandwich and go right up to her room. The only likely night for such an event would have been a Saturday night, and at those times, her husband was home, at which time, they would go downstairs and eat and then sit at the bar and have a few drinks. Mr. Fazio was friendly with them as he was friendly with everyone else who came into the restaurant. We asked her if she had any idea as to what happened to him and she stated, "No". We asked her if she had heard of any gambling going on in the place, or if she knew any of the gamblers and she stated that she did not. I asked her if she had heard any talk about gambling and she stated that she would be unable to understand if anyone was talking about gambling as she knows no words or phrases concerning gambling.

Explain in detail what work was done on the case:

On Wednesday, Sept. 5, 1973, we interviewed one Earle E. ROSE Jr., 9-5-25, of 7300 N. River Rd., owner and operator of the Rose Co., a heavy equipment type factory, located on N. Teutonia Ave. Mr. Rose was questioned regarding information that was received by Detectives Carroll and McHugh, from Anthony FAZIO, the brother of the complainant in this offense. Mr. Tony Fazio had stated previously that in 1965, Mr. Rose was sentenced to the House of Correction for income tax evasion by the Federal government and wanted to do his time in the House of Correction with a minimum of effort and had contacted several people who had contacts at the House of Correction in an attempt to get a choice job at the House of Correction. Tony Fazio stated that Rose had given Louis Fazio $250.00 cash as half-payment to get him a good job at the House of Correction, while he had to spend his time there. It so happendd that when Mr. Rose got to the House of Correction, he had a job lined up in the infirmary there the Federal Judge commuted his sentence and let the sentence run for the time. The balance of this payment to Louis Fazio was made by check and when Mr. Rose found out that he did not have to spend his time at the House of Correction, he stopped payment on the check, and, in effect, cheated Louis Fazio out of the $250.00 which he had promised to pay. This information, which we received, was conveyed to Earle E. Rose Jr., and he stated that he did not know what we were talking about. However, he does admit being a close friend of Angelo FAZIO, who is also a brother of the deceased and has met the other brothers on numerous occasions and has played squash at the Milwaukee Athletic Club with Johnny FAZIO. Mr. Rose denies that this event (stopping payment on the $250.00 check), ever happened, but the expression on his face led us to believe that

REPORT

To LEO WOELFEL

Inspector of Detectives

Sir:

On Saturday, October 27, 1973, we received a telephone call from the Chief Dispatcher of Greendale Police Department, Milton JESKE. He informed us that at 8:49 A.M. this date he received a telephone call from a male caller with a deep voice stating, "This is an important message, Tony Fazio will be hit today, as soon as he leaves his house." After receiving this call, the Dispatcher called the Milwaukee Police Department and informed Captai Russ of this phone call. Captain Russ dispatched me to interview, Anthony Fazio at 920 E. Calumet (352-5165). I arrived at the home of Anthony Fazio at approximately 9:30 A.M. and was met there by Officer Connie Sixty of Squad 1501, Fox Point Police Department. He stated that he was also notified by the Greendale Dispatcher of this telephone call. We interviewed Anthony Fazio at his residence regarding the call and he stated that he had his usual routine during the week and had noaltercation- of any kind with any customers or aquaintances. He states he does not gamble, associate with other women, or have anything to do with the crimin element of our city. He states that his only contact of any importance in the past week has been frequent interviews with Detective Snead Carroll, who is working on his brother's homicide. He states that he has not fired anyone from his place of business, which is "The Iron Horse Restaurant" located at 418 Mayfair Rd. He states that he has no out-standing accounts payable also states that he does not have any gambling debts, nor does he associate with any other women.

He went on to say his son, 21 yrs. living in the same home has he does at 920 E. Calumet is associating with a woman who has a divorce pending, but he stat that he feels that situation ~~Not~~ aggravated enough to warrant a telephone call of this nature. We agreed that the Fox Point Police Department will keep his home under surveillanc for the time being and they notify the Wauwatosa Police Department of this threat and the Wauwatosa Officers will interview, Fazio at his place of business later this afternoon.

Anthony Fazio drives a brown, Plymouth, Lic. S34704 and his wife drives a yellow Plymouth, Lic. P61867. He also states that they never inter-change cars. His plans for the day regarding this phone call do not coincide with the threat and states that he doesn't intend to leave his residence until 3:00 P.M. this afternoon, when he is going to drive out to the Mitchell Airport Area to look at a tavern for sale. He states that no one had prior knowledge of his intentions.

Interviewed the son, who could give no helpful information regarding this threat. Both men agreed that the only altercation in the past month has been a bartender, who has been recently dismissed by the name of Larry GRAF, W/M, 27 yrs., DOB: 10-26-46, resides at 2567 S. 66th St. Fazio explained that this man is a motorcycle rider and fired him as an undesirable employee. There were no words and did not leave under adverse conditions. I informed Mr. Fazio to take extra precautions as to his leaving the home and returning also when he leaves his business and returns. I explained that this information would be turned over to Detectives Snead Carroll and Mc Hugh, who are working on the homicide of Louis Fazio, and they may evaluate this threat and might re-interview him at a later time. After the interview was terminated, Anthony Fazio, called the Detective Bureau relating that he did have an incident with a salesman from Jack White Ford, which was investigated by Detective Lt. Vincent Partipilo, and I informed him that we would notify Lt. Partipilo of thi threat and evaluate the possiblity of a tie in. No further information at this time.

Regarding: Telephone No. 642-7773

Wanted for: Re: Louis Fazio Murder Investigation

Information: He referred to a teletype message from our department requested the subscriber to whom the above numter is listed. He stated the subscriber is Tom Elwood, who lives at 223 W. Adams with his wife, Alice, and two daughters. He is an elderly gentlemen, partially incapacitated, and hasn't driven for several years due to his health. Our message did not state what type of investigation we are conducting but felt it would pertain to the daughters rather then Mr. Elwood. I advised him I would relay the information to the detective who made the inquiry, and if he has any further question will call back. I thanked him for calling, and our conversation was terminated.
